

MATRIX CONNECTOR

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A matrix connector includes a first electrically insulative housing and a second electrically insulative housing arranged in a stack with the respective terminal slots respectively aligned, and terminals sets each formed of a movable terminal axially slidably mounted in the terminal slots of the first electrically insulative housing and a terminal holder mounted in the terminal slots of the second electrically insulative housing and clamped on the respective movable terminal for enabling the respective movable terminal to be moved axially relative to the respective terminal holder when maintained in contact with the respective terminal holder.